

RUSS NOW MENAGE KIMPOLONG FORTS

Slav Armies Pressing on With Amazing Speed in Bukovina. Surprise Attacks Made.

LONDON, June 25.—Pressing southward at amazing speed, the extreme right wing of the Russian army has arrived before the Bukovina city of Kimpolung and has opened an attack.

The official statement from the Austrian war office reporting stubborn fighting at Kimpolung, was the first intimation of the rapidity with which the Czar's troops were pressing home their attack.

Kimpolung, a city of 14,000 inhabitants, lies fifty-five miles southwest of Czernowitz at the extreme southwestern corner of Bukovina, and is fortified. The appearance of Russian troops in this region indicates that practically all Bukovina is now in the hands of the Czar.

An official statement from Petrograd reported the capture of the Galician town of Kuty by a Russian force that had crossed the border of Bukovina with the capture of 150 prisoners and four machine guns.

The Austrian war office statement today admits that the Russians occupied Kuty, but announces that they were afterwards expelled. The Austrian war office also announced the repulse of Russian attacks northwest of Tarnopol and near Radziwiof, where the Slavs are attempting to approach Lemberg, and in the Volynian sectors on the north.

The German war office also announced the repulse of Russian attacks in Volynia and further advances for General von Linsingen's troops.

The Russian war office announced that the Russians, in southeastern Galicia, advancing on Kolomea, have made further progress west of Stryz and have occupied a height on the west bank of the Stryzyna.

On the German front, the Russians made a successful surprise attack on enemy trenches near Illuxt. East of Beg Daboff, a powerful enemy offensive, preceded by violent artillery preparation, was repulsed by the Slavs with bayonets. West of Torthine, violent fighting continues.

DECORATION SCHOOL A LONG- FELT WANT

Designer Sees Great Opening for Competent Persons to Adorn Interiors.

NEW YORK, June 25.—The establishment of courses in interior decoration at Columbia University, leading to a bachelor of science degree, will mark the opening of a new career for young men and women whose talent lies along the lines of decorative art. While not desiring to be quoted by name, he was enthusiastic in his praise of the initiative of the Columbia executive in the matter.

"It is a surprising fact," he said, "that while a young man can acquire an education in law, medicine, or engineering, he has heretofore been given no chance to qualify as an expert decorator, or a competent judge of fine lace, tapestries, pottery, or furniture. He can go to a night school to become a bricklayer, gas fitter, pharmacist, or stenographer, but no one has heretofore been given the opportunity to become a decorator of a great museum has heretofore been denied him."

Value of Training.
"In plain dollars and cents, the value of training such as will be given by the course announced is shown by the recent sale here of the Mazarin tapestry, which brought $20,000. A collection of forty pieces sold for $2,000. A private rug collection recently sold at public auction for $20,000, one rug for $20,000. When advised as asked by prospective purchasers of valuable art properties like that, they are justified in demanding opinions that are authentic as the result of the study of decorative arts, and that can be relied on as such."

"In addition to the millions of dollars that are spent every year in this country for the domestic furniture, rugs, wall papers, draperies, laces, embroideries, and the like of an upholstery character, there are millions more spent for similar merchandise brought from abroad. The need of training to pass on these things authoritatively is apparent. Many decorators have acquired recognition as authorities by years of hard study and work; others give an impression of authority when they are merely guessing. In view of this it is only fair that the purchasing public be given the right in years to come, to demand proof of a decorator's knowledge and ability in the form of a college or university degree. Columbia will give such proof."

"It is now up to our other great universities to follow Columbia's lead, as none of them covers the subject of industrial art. The study of architecture is the nearest they come to it, but the study of architecture is not the study of environment, or the study of the integral factors that constitute furnishings. Millions of dollars are spent every year in the furnishing and decorating of American homes, and the greater part goes into dissemination of bad art and the perpetuity of execrable taste."

Museums Are Magnificent.
"Our museums are magnificent, but heretofore there has been no education afforded the man who desires to understand their contents. Our art schools are superficial; our schools of design are impracticable."

"A man must pass an examination to become a chauffeur, a postman, or a policeman, but to be a decorator he can start on bluff. By the time he is decaying in the years of decrepitude he may have picked up enough information, through absorption, to make him reliable."

"The American universities have been graduating librarians, but no curators, nor have they been producing men capable of instructing in any one of the great branches of a great museum. The result is that fully 90 per cent of all the works of art sold in this city are taken, whether sold in Fourth avenue or Fifth, Sixth avenue, or Riverside Drive. The majority of salesmen are little better than confidence men, either voluntarily pushing a fraud that they know is fraud, or, with the dignity of assumed authority, fixing values on more guesswork."

"The establishment of courses in interior decoration at Columbia marks the opening of a new career, giving to the man or woman who would qualify in this work an opportunity to obtain professional status which has heretofore been denied."

Another Popular Resort On Southern Railway

Another resort has been added to the Southern railway's popular run through the "Land of the Sky."
Plagah Forest, a 50,000-acre tract, recently deeded to the United States by Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt, is reached directly by the Southern road. This new national forest is in the heart of the Appalachian mountains, seventeen miles southwest of Asheville.
The forest possesses an ideal climate, and contains fish and game in abundance. Trees of almost every known species make up this vast tract.
The Forest Service is said to be ready to receive applications for summer home and camp sites in Plagah forest, and to grant long-term leases at a nominal price.

Sends Mayor to Jail, Violated Election Law

WILKESBARR, Pa., June 25.—Thomas Kelly, burgess of Hughestown borough, near here, has been sentenced to six months in the county jail for election law violations. Kelly was found guilty of inducing young men not of age to vote at the last general election in November.

He was also fined $1.50 and the costs of prosecution.

Indians Volunteer For Mexico Service

In Number Offering Are Graduates of Carlisle and Haskell.

MILWAUKEE, June 25.—The Oneida Reservation Indians, many of whom served in the Spanish-American war, and whose fathers were civil war scouts, are organizing a company to offer their services as volunteers.

They include many Carlisle and Haskell graduates. Tom Schenadore, a former cadet captain and football player, and Jonas Weelock, the noted Carlisle football captain, being in the number. The Menominee Indian military company at Shawnee, organized for the

Chapman's Decoration Prevented by Death

PARIS, June 25.—Victor Chapman, of New York, young American aviator, who was killed at the Verdun front yesterday after shooting down two German aeroplanes, was soon to have been decorated with the military medal for bravery in recent air battles, it was stated here.

Chapman had had seven machines shot to pieces under him in the last six weeks since he was sent to the Verdun front with other American flyers and was said to be one of the most daring flyers with the French army.

French Gun Has Fired 18,830 Shots at Germans

LONDON, June 25.—There is a "six-ante-quinze" in service still on the Champagne front which has been in action ever since the opening of the war. It is believed this gun is about the "sole survivor" of the early days of the struggle, and that it is record to date of 18,830 shots fired is far and away ahead of any other gun.

Naturally, the piece has not come through all this unscathed. More than once it has looked like a case of "smack out," but each time it is lucky star has saved it, and although the gun carriage is all battered and bruised the cannon itself is as good as ever it was, and its men firmly believe it will outlive the war.
